Love is in the air in Florida now that matchmaker extraordinaire Kelly Leary has launched Revolution Dating. With a unique approach that completely transforms the dating experience, the company has already begun delivering romance to single, divorced and widowed men and women from Vero Beach to Broward County.

"After more than two decades of success in the industry I felt driven to raise the bar even higher by creating Revolution Dating," said Kelly. "I have helped thousands of people from 25 to 85 find friendship and romance, which is exactly what my team and I are providing to our clients today."

With a Master's degree in clinical psychology and a proven 23-year track record, Kelly Leary is well-known along the Treasure Coast, the Palm Beaches and South Florida as a top matchmaker. In addition to writing a monthly advice column called "The Singles Scene," for the past five years, she was featured in Think Magazine's February 2014 edition as the Florida matchmaker.

Appropriately, Revolution Dating chose PGA Commons, conveniently located just off of I-95 and right in the heart of the Palm Beach Gardens social scene, for its headquarters. Its office is upstairs from Rocco's Tacos and near Vic and Angelo's and Spoto's Oyster Bar, a trio of dating hot spots.

Kelly and the Revolution Dating team pair up couples based upon their compatibility, drawing upon a proprietary database of desirable men and women, each of whom has been rigorously pre-screened including thorough background checks. "We personally interview every prospective client to make sure that we are creating a community of extremely high-quality individuals," said Kelly.

In addition to coordinating one-on-one dates, Revolution Dating sponsors private, invitation-only parties and mixers. Kelly and her matchmaking colleagues also arrange specialty dating excursions including kayaking and yoga, as well as speed dating events that create lots of opportunities for participants to kindle love connections.

Part of what separates Revolution Dating from other matchmaking companies is the degree of personal attention, support and relationship guidance that it provides. Every member receives a professional photo shoot, writing assistance with his or her personal profile, and one-on-one image consulting and coaching. Revolution Dating is not just focused on lining up dates, but helping guide clients to love and improving their lives.

Because Revolution Dating individually tailors its service to meet the needs of each client, it is able to provide unique offerings including personal shopping, mock-dating that provides unprecedented levels of honest feedback, and even house visits following a divorce, death, or break-up to help get the home "relationship ready."

"We are excited to help our friends in the local community find that special someone, and to make dating a less stressful and more fun and rewarding experience," said Kelly. "As our name suggests, we are revolutionizing dating, one match at a time."
